Case Study House 1B-002-Cooper House

This home is compact, stylish, and brimming with character — not a house that simply stands still, but one that hums with personality. Think of it as the architectural equivalent of a Cooper: fun, functional, and just a touch cheeky.

Designed as a simple yet clever two-story, one-bedroom house, it offers a thoughtful balance between efficiency and comfort. Perfect for two — whether that's an elderly couple seeking an easy-to-maintain downsized space, or a young pair starting their journey together — this home keeps costs low without compromising on livability. The layout focuses on a smart, efficient floor plan while still providing generously sized rooms and storage zones.

Floor Plan

This compact yet bold two-story home boasts ground floor which is a fluid, open-concept living, dining, and kitchen area where every curve and surface is intentional. Storage space next to/under the staircase contains space for coats, shoes and other every day items.

An L-Shaped staircase arcs gracefully upward, smooth, tactile, and minimal. Upstairs, the bedroom features a panoramic window to the front that offers expansive views, with potential for a skylight overhead that opens like a sleek sunroof, flooding the room with natural light.
